HI LITES 1984

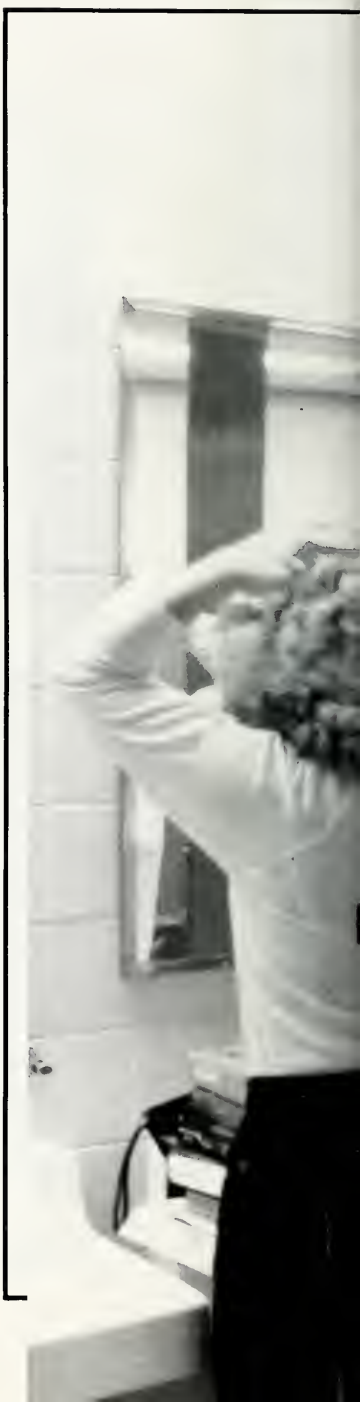
Monroe Central
Jr. Sr. High School
Parker City, IN 47368
Volume 22

IMAGES

All's quiet now but come game night, the gym doors will open wide for a steady steam of fans.

Images Of MC

On the following pages are pictures of the 1983-84 school year. As you look through the book, we hope that you will agree that the Hi LITES photographers have caught the most memorable events and, more importantly, some of the more mundane events which truly reflect the day-to-day life at Monroe Central.

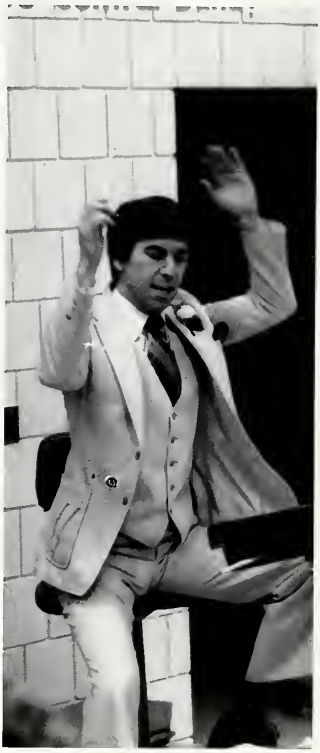


"Sit down and be quite!" These commands are familiar to Carma Winnans, a daily bus rider.

Mr. David Washler prepares another of his experiments for junior high science.

While Anita Mullen and Tina Reece fix their hair, Jenny Bennett sees no reason to tamper with perfection.

Hand gestures are very important when conducting the band as Mr. Wayne Hinkle demonstrates.

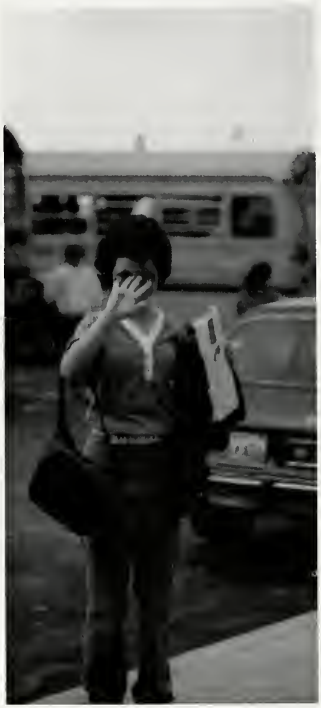


After a vigorous workout with the team, Tracy Buis relaxes in the whirlpool.

Brent Anderson is very happy about the fact of activity period being discontinued.

School can have a strange effect on people. Chris Burke and Danielle Anderson seem to be suffering severely from those strange effects.

Sandy Renner's friendly wave to the camera shows she is glad day's end has come.



Going home is often a happy time for all Monroe Central students.

One image that will long stay in students' minds is that of those long, long lunch lines.

Karen Bowdell recreates a scene that is familiar to many students. Whether the offense was being tardy, talking too much, or something more serious, many students have found themselves serving detention.

Last Crazy Day Is A Smash

Due to new state laws, 1984 may be the last year for Crazy Day. With this in mind, students made the most of the day. When Mr. Gene Abernathy, parade marshall, fired the shot to begin the events, visiting student council members from Union City were amazed by the bizarre costumes and wild antics of Monroe Central students.

Although Crazy Day was basically the same, a few changes were made. During the traditional breakfast of milk and donuts, a skit contest was held. Next, students gathered in the gym for a dance. Then in the afternoon the classes competed in the annual games. One new game was a free throw shooting contest between boy and girl basketball team members. The boys were victorious.

Cheering loudly, the seniors celebrate as the results of one of the individual games are announced. The seniors were also the overall winners of the annual competition between classes.

Court — Jennifer Thornburg, Mike Bogue, Corry Lockard, Rod Snapp, Christine Ray, Chad Sours, Carma Winans, Donald Tinsman, Leesa O'Bryant, Brian Lacy.

Homecoming Queen and King, Trisha Deckman and Scott Moore, pose for the cameras under the archway between games.

Last year's Queen, Tylene Gantz, awaits the final announcement of the new Homecoming King and Queen.

A boxing ring or a ballerina's playground? It's too crazy. You decide.

Lisa Stephens and Teresa Hart take part in their own Crazy Day activities.

Beauties Reign Over Events

A traditional dream for young American girls is to be a homecoming or prom queen. This dream came true for several Monroe Central beauties as they reigned over the social events of the 1983-84 school year. Whether the crown was won in the fall Fire Prevention Parade, the Mardi Gras competition, or the spring prom, the joy was evident on the proud smiles of the winners.

Senior candidate Trisha Deckman is the queen of the 1983 Fire Prevention Dance.

Leading the grand march are Todd Coulter and LeAnn Williams, prom king and queen.

The freshmen class was well represented at Fire Prevention festivities by the pretty Lisa Reed.

Linda Smithson, the representative of the sophomore class on Fire Prevention Day, smiles at the crowd.

While Brian Lacy, the prom prince, looks on, Mr. Larry New crowns Robin Keever as prom princess.

Matchmaker Opens To Full House

The Masque & Gavel's production of the MATCHMAKER didn't exactly take off with a bang but came together after much hard work. Memorizing lines is always difficult, but became doubly so since the play took place in a time period unfamiliar to the cast and contained many hard-to-pronounce words. Much work was also directed to stage positioning which seemed to absorb as much time as learning lines.

The crew also experienced difficulties. The cafetorium has a small stage and moving four large backdrops became quite a problem. However, the stage crew was able to solve the problem by having "rehearsals" before rehearsal.

The acting season came to an end by presenting two fine performances to the student body and "almost" perfect presentations to the general public.

Joel Bennett lectures on some of the important points of being a man.

Straining to transport a trunk of lingerie, Dean Cook looks ahead.

As if they were being scolded by Malia Mitchell, Danny Miller and Sherry Dunsmore look to the ground.

Taking a short break from the performance, Todd Roarhig catches the "Pepsi Spirit."

Nearly cutting Joel Bennett's lower jaw, Brian Redmond works by instinct.

At Last . . . Graduation Day

3:00 p.m. Sunday, May 20, 1984. For the '100 members of the Monroe Central graduating class, the date will long be remembered. They had been counting the days since shortly after Christmas and finally it had arrived.

Although there were some tears at the thought of being separated, for most graduates it was a happy time as they thought ahead to jobs, college, or perhaps marriage.

Long-time class sponsor Mrs. Linda Welch performs one of her last duties as she helps Glenna Huston adjust her cap.

The near capacity audience stands as the class of 1984 enters the gymnasium.

As Superintendent Merle Bryan reads her name, Aimee Addington receives a diploma from Mr. Clifford Coulter.

Principal Don Elder gives last-minute instructions to the class of 1984.

Graduation is important enough even for married, seven-semester graduate Rita Schwer to return.

Graduating seniors perform with the choir for the last time.

Practicing the symbolic tassel transfer are James Brown, Monte Wright, Chad Wright, Luke Rowe.

Senior Week Is Fun Time

Senior week!!! Senior week is a time for fun, sun, and parties, but no relaxation. The graduates were far too busy to find any time for much sleep or for that matter even to catch their breath.

There were rehearsals and honors day to attend and, of course, the mandatory trip to King's Island and the picnic at the reservoir. For some students graduation day came as a double relief. Not only was school over, but they could also catch up on their sleep.

Class secretary, Julayne Hammers, presents Mr. Gene Abernathy with a gift to show the class's appreciation of his many kindnesses.

Awaiting their meals at the senior banquet are Ronnie Booher, Candy Snyder, Daverlee Wright, and Tony Cooper.

Lisa Stephens seems somewhat reluctant to smoke the traditional cigar.

Rita Schwer and Marcy Sayre are amused at the senior banquet while Jennifer Schwer seems merely puzzled.

Every seniors duty is to smoke the traditional cigar. Robin Duncan, Collette Gantz, Kelli Davis and Sonia King are ready to comply with the tradition.

Juniors present Oriental Prom

What could be more romantic than strolling through a garden of cherry blossoms illuminated by sparkling lights?

You spent so much time preparing. You went shopping, made arrangements, and double-checked with your date about everything. Then, when your escort arrived, you knew the evening would be fantastic.

First, there was dinner, followed by dancing to the Joe City Band. Then you whisked with your friends to the Rivoli theatre where you laughed through the antics of SIXTEEN CANDLES. Soon, night gave way to mornng, and you joined your friends in a light breakfast to make the night complete.

As you watched your date drive away, you smiled faintly. There will never be a night to compare to your evening of "Romance in the Orient."

During the grand march Tenoha Brown is escorted by a smiling Bryan Hughes.

Joking seems to ease the nervous tension at the prom as shown by Danny Payne, Chris Varner, Alana Homan, Monte Howell, and Eddie Lockard.

The glass was decorated with an oriental design and shall be kept forever as a remembrance of the 1984 junior-senior prom.

The transformation of the cafetorium into a romantic oriental atmosphere made all the hard work of decorating worthwhile.

One couple looking as if having the time of their lives is Scott Schauer and Angela Reed.

Music at this year's prom was supplied by the Joe City Band.

Sophomore class officers, Donald Tinsman, Matt McKelvey, Wendi Gray, Alan Qualls, Linda Smithson, Angie Fisher, and Jamie Holiday seem to enjoy their duties as official servers.

Between classes is often a time for socializing, but sometimes a student can also get an answer to a question. Here Mr. David Washler and Billy Sunday talk between classes.

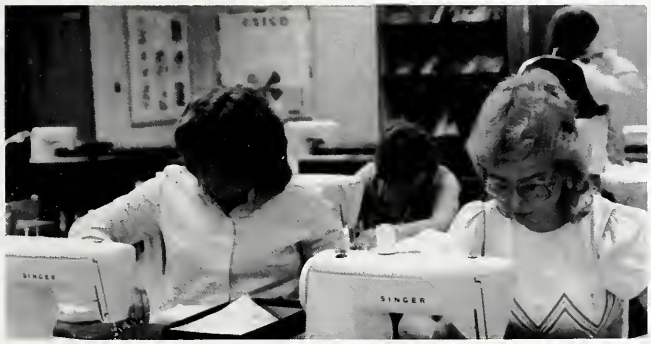
For the first time at Monroe Central, students could take drivers education during the school year rather than in the summer. Here Mrs. Pam Howell buckles up before leaving the parking lot.

Calculators make Wayne Sheller and other math and science students' work much easier.

"Big Kids", Dana Hart and Karen Bowdell, enjoy the games as much as the play school students.

Administrators Dick Meister, Larry New, and Don Elder need a break just like students.

If concentration is an indication, Judi Calhoun and Talena Damewood will have professional results.



A Variety Of Images

CLASSES AND CLUBS

Many different IMAGES are seen when one looks at Monroe Central. One IMAGE is of those striving to become the best at what they are doing. Another IMAGE is that of the special arts such as acting and singing. At Monroe Central the talent is overflowing. Other IMAGES seen in our students are those of future businessmen, scientists, teachers, artists, and architects.

Who knows? Maybe a Pulitzer Prize winner will arise from the masses at Monroe Central. Although we have so many different talents, futures, and goals, the one thing we all have in common is an IMAGE of success.

One of the many things that FFA and ag classes teach Derren Coulter and other students is the proper care of equipment.

Two members of Satin Sounds, Tanisha Brown and Shari Dunsmore, do a little mugging in the halls.

Supervising fourth period study hall gives Mr. Steve Reed a chance to rest and recover from the rigors of teaching physical education.

Jeff Coulter, Lisa Payne, Chuck Chalfant, and Jeel Bennett are among the many seniors who learned the basics of computer operation.

Band Improves With New Leader

"I am what I choose today; not what I've chosen in the past." With these inspiring words to begin the year, the band had a fantastic year under the leadership of new director, Mr. Wayne Hinkle.

"The first two months were hectic, but the band improved greatly and the hidden talent was found," said Mr. Hinkle.

Through the year the group received three standing ovations and a complimentary letter on a fine performance at the Kiwanis Club in Winchester. The ovations were received at the Variety Show, Open House, and Spring Musical.

The band participated in an ISSMA contest and won first division ratings.

To celebrate the bands' success, the kids were rewarded with a swimming and pizza party in April.

Friday night during Pep Band performance, Todd Akers puckers up for a hot date with his trumpet.

Can Mark Hodson breathe or is he just catching some rays?

Marching to the beat of a different drum, the MC Band plays its way through the Fire Prevention Parade.

Band — Front Row: Dawn Armstrong, Judy Wilson, Maggie Houston, Lori Thurman, Krista Wise, Lisa Reed, Jenny Homan, Karicia Gardiner, Michelle Cross, Kim Bantz, Kathy Hoerst. Second Row: Kelli Kristy, Todd Roahrig, Scott Swingley, Glenna Huston, Jeff Crone, Brad Swallow, Todd Akers, Brian Redmond, Troy Roahrig, Dean Cook. Third Row: Vicki Brosher, Karen Dohner, Steed Toney, Paul Brandenburg, Brent Gardiner, Don Sumwalt, Shelly Hedges, Mary Butler, Steve McCord, Justin Shelton. Back Row: Amy Smithson, Mr. Wayne R. Hinkle, Kevin Dodd, David Stanley, Brian Hughes, Doug Rowe, Butch Kratky, Brad Kelly, Mark Hodson.

The lively pep band helped to excite the fans at the basketball games.

Concert Choir Wins Honors

The choral groups of Monroe Central, concert choir and Satin Sounds, have been under the leadership of a new director this year — Miss Belinda Horton.

Both the choir and Satin Sounds performed at open house, the Christmas Concert, Variety Show, Spring Festival and commencement. The Satin Sounds also entertained at nearby nursing homes. The concert choir participated in the ISSMA state contest where they received a Division I rating. It had been thirteen years since a Monroe Central choral group had brought home such an honor.

Monroe Central was also well represented at the ISSMA Solo and Ensemble Contest. The quartet of Mary Butler, Tenoha Brown, Karmen Wooters, and Karen Dohner received a first division rating, as did soloists Mark Riley, Karen Dohner, and pianists Jenny Gillespie and Karicia Gardiner.

As Miss Belinda Horton plays "Fame," Satin Sounds members Karmen Wooters, Chad May, Tenoha Brown, and Butch Kratky practice their dance routine.

Choir — Front Row: Shannon Hinshaw, Becky Foreman, Mindy Stephens, Malia Mitchell, Dawn Armstrong. Second Row: Tammy Kuhn, Cindy Mounger, Marilyn Bowdell, Samantha Donovan. Third Row: Missy Smith, Tammy Brown, Drenda Thurman, Cydney Doll, Lori Winningham. Fourth Row: Robin Kuhn, Donna Oliphant, Sandy Johnson, Leah Lackey, Glenna Huston, Karicia Gardiner. Back Row: Brian Redmond, Randel Jennings, Steve McCord, Mark Riley, Don Sumwalt, Paul Brandenburg, Dean Cook, Miss Belinda Horton.

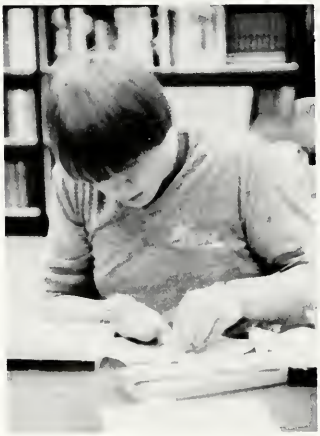
Following Miss Belinda Horton's instructions to open "wide," Malia Mitchell practices a new song.

FHA and FFA Build Skills

Both the FutureFarmers and the Future Homemakers of America teach members many useful skills. Whether the skill is how to properly prepare a dinner or the best way to plant a field, both organizations play an important part in the development on the members' futures.

Showing the correct way to pin a garment, Mrs. Carol Gilmore assists Home Economics I class members.



Working hard, Darren Coulter completes an FFA project.

Future Farmers of America — Front Row: Curt Winans, Greg Brown, Paul Cross, Tony Schauer, Bruce Reiber, Todd Coulter. Second Row: Shawn Swearingen, James Brown, John Tinsman, Charles Calhoun, Tom Lykins, Tracy Buis. Third Row: Chuck Rice, Jeff Gaines, Suzanne Weaver, Julie Davis, Bobby Snyder, Ronnie Arthur. Fourth Row: Dean Hart, Brad Lackey, Darren Coulter, Cy Duvall, Brett Meranda. Back Row: Jeff Hutchens, Brad Kelley, Scott Swingley, Marvin Arthur, Danny Payne.

Finishing a garment requires LeeAnn Willism's complete concentration.

Trent Hutchison Wins Hallmark

For the first time, a Randolph County art student was awarded the prestigious Hallmark Award. Trent Hutchison's water color of Chuck Chalfant won both a Gold Key and a Hallmark Award. Of the over 2,900 entries from 196 schools that were submitted in the contest, only five earned the distinction of a Hallmark Award. Trent's painting has been forwarded to New York for national competition.

The art club hosted the annual Randolph County Art Show. Art work from all five county high schools was displayed in the gymnasium in April. Monroe Central students placed well in many of the various catagories, capturing a total of 24 awards. Receiving first place honors were Tina Lawson, textiles; Mike Hunt, printmaking; Bret Hodson, mixed media; Cathy Cross, photography. Marilyn Bowdell's drawing took "Best of Show" honors. The field trip to Indianapolis was funded by selling flowers and candy on Saint Valentine's Day.

Trent Hutchison begins the task of molding a mass of clay into a beautiful project.

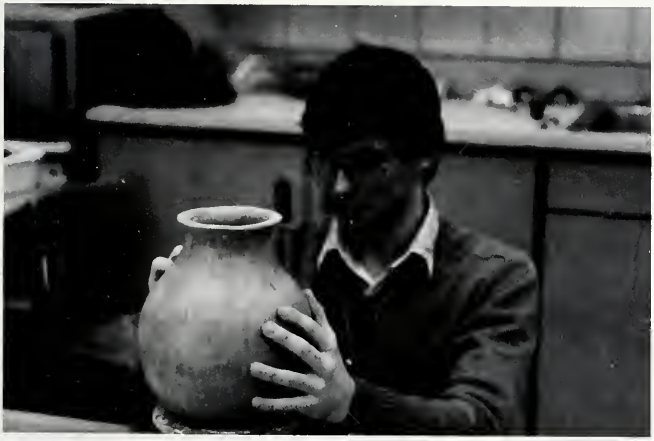
Enjoying the beauty of a near-finished project, Scott Moore smiles with satisfaction.



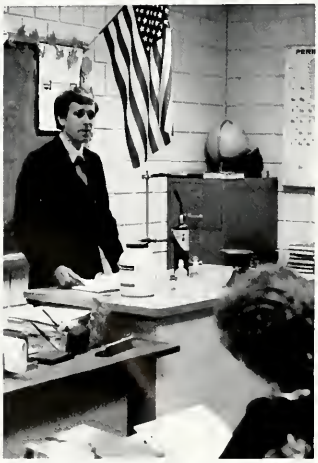
Displayed here are some of the advanced art class's, final projects.

Science Dept. Faces Changes

For the last time freshmen students had a choice between earth science and biology to fulfill their high school science requirements. As part of Indiana's "excellence in education" program, all students will be required to take biology and a second year of science. The change will affect next year's freshmen class.

Another change in state law also affects the science department. Junior high students will be required to take a year of science rather than a semester. Because of the changes an additional science teacher will be hired.

As she performs a chemistry experiment, Mindy Homan seems to enjoy herself.



Mr. David Washler frequently demonstrates the scientific principles he is teaching.

One of the most common jokes about girls and science concerns their squemishness when dissecting. Stephanie Shelton, Michelle Holliday, Lynn Winningham, Jennifer Schwer, and Michelle Schlenker disprove this long time sexist joke.

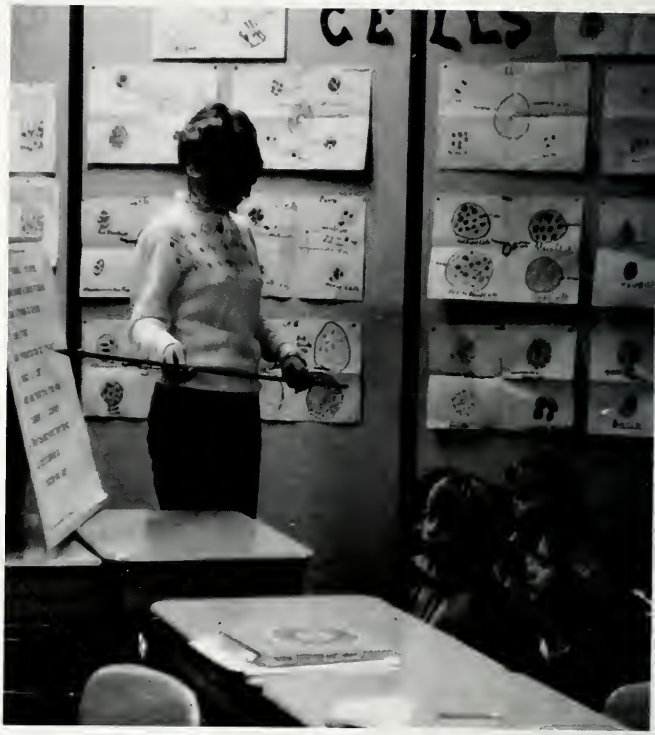
Mr. Les McEldowney gives Trisha Deckman some instructions while Jeff Burke, Aimee Addington, Brian Swallow, and Scott Turner do their assignments.

Seventh graders get a brief introduction to geometry from Mrs. Sandy Cowgill.

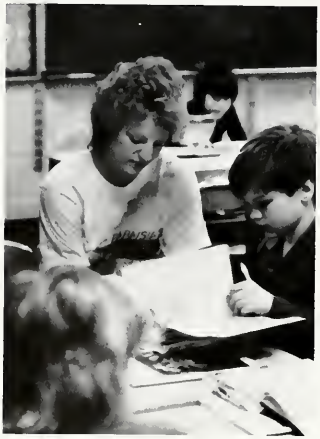
Two Clubs That Teach Leadership

One thing which ties the student council and the Future Teachers of America together is that both clubs teach leadership. The FTA enables members to get some idea of what teaching is like, allows students to receive more individual attention, and helps the regular classroom teacher.

Student Council members definitely learn leadership. They host homecoming, one of the biggest social events of the year, and are solely responsible for planning and financing it.



Providing help with vacalulary instruction was one of Dana Hart's main tasks.



Individual attention is important in elementary school. Beth Hale worked with Mrs. Marsha Castle and Mrs. Ann Meister to provide it.

Student Council members are rewarded for all their hard work with a free meal at Hagerstown Smorgasbord.

Career Center Aids Students

The Muncie Area Career Center is for students who have a tentative idea about what they want to do in the future. Classes offered by the center are one or two years in length. Monroe Central students enrolled at MACC took a variety of classes. Mike Garringer studied electricity and electronics; Scott Schauer, welding; Brian Dodd, printing; Luke Rowe, machine shop; and Othel Dobbs, engine overhaul. Two girls, Cindy Moore and Kathy Reece, were enrolled in the beautician's course.

The career center also helped advanced students to get a part-time job. For instance, Brian Dodd found assistance in locating a job at Gibson's Speed-e-Print.

Shawn Anderson studies fervently as Brett Meranda is ready to relax with the daily news.

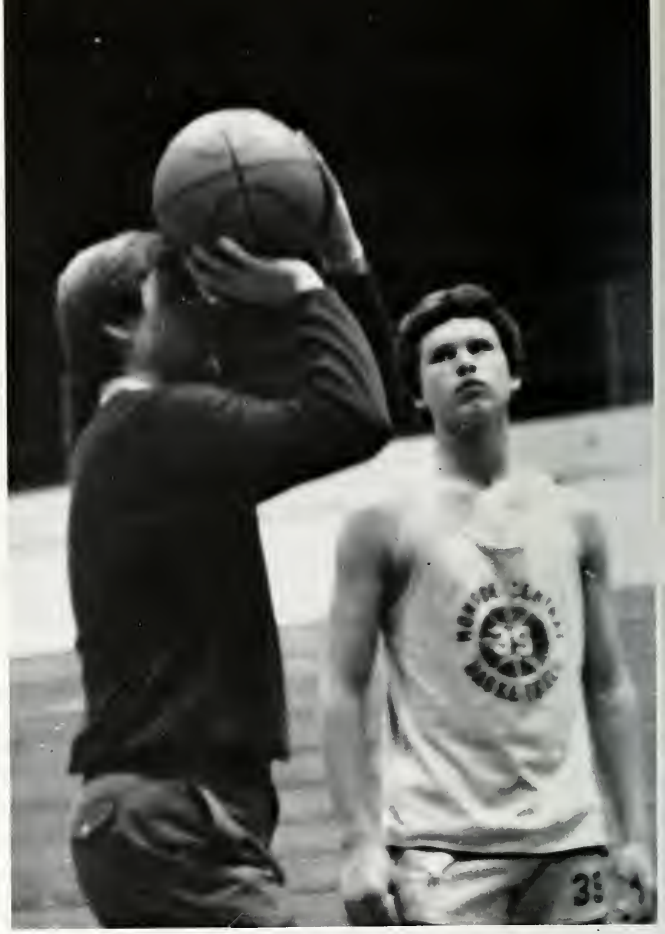
FCA Awards Scholarship

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes was not only the largest club at Monroe Central, but also one of the most active. Through various fund raising projects, the group was able to award four scholarships. Recipients were David Carpenter, Joel Bennett, Chuck Chalfant, and Trent Hutchison.

Christian fellowship was also very important to the group. Each morning members who wishes met informally at 8:05 for prayer. In the fall, the FCA had their annual wiener roast and over 90 members attended the Youth Explosion each of the four nights it was held in Winchester. In addition, the club went Christmas carolling in Parker, Farmland, and at nursing homes.



Teaching the finer points of shooting is just one of the many jobs of a physical education teacher. Here Mr. Steve Reed gives Chad Sours some shooting tips.

Kris Varner and Erin Hoyt seem to have more stamina than two of their freshmen classmates.

Before one can become a "real" teacher, she must undergo student teaching. Helping Mrs. Pam Howell teach a basketball unit is Miss Connie Oberlin.

Foreign Language Department Grows

The foreign language department changed looks in two ways. First, enough students were interested in Latin to offer it two periods a day instead of one. Also, Mrs. Cheryl Williamson, a first year teacher, joined the department as a French instructor. Both Latin and French had second year students and Mrs. Williamson hopes to generate enough student interest to have third and fourth year courses eventually.

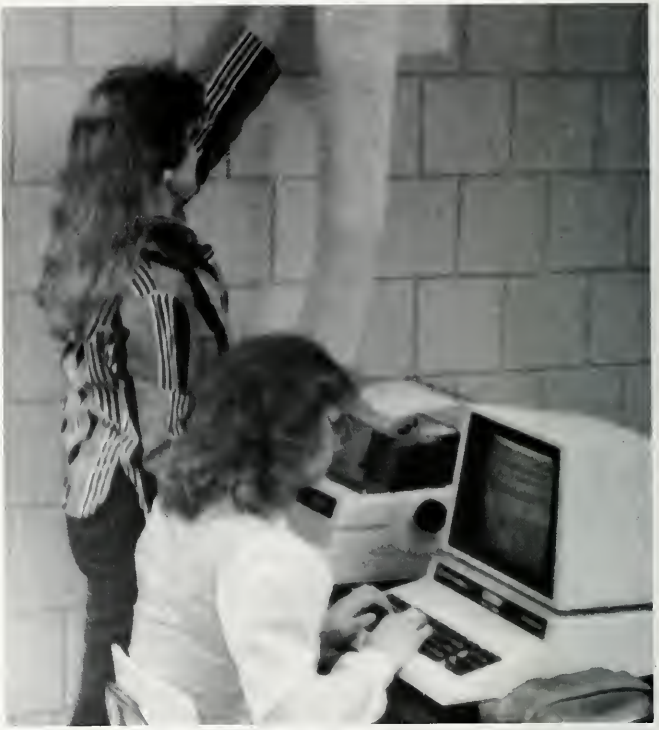
Business Dept. Adds Class

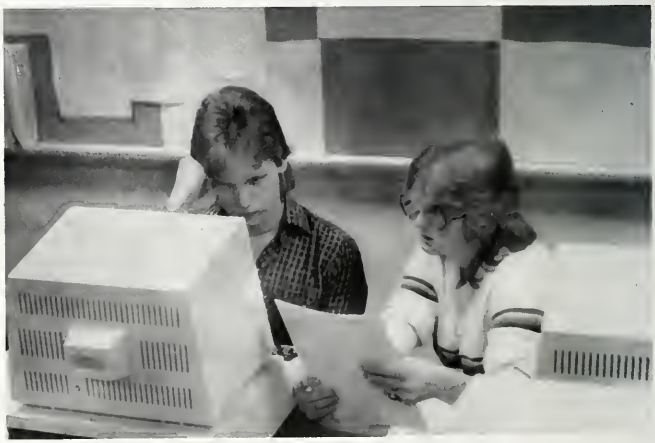
Fourteen seniors took advantage of a new class offered by the business department. The new class, word processing, was open to any student who had completed two years of typing and who had also taken office machines. According to Mrs. Rita Hunt, course instructor, the challenge of word processing was learning to use typing skills to accurately produce professional looking business documents. Mrs. Hunt stated that the class could give students a definite advantage in finding a job.

Although Mrs. Hunt enjoyed teaching the class, it meant much hard work for her. She had to spend many hours after school last spring and during the summer acquainting herself with the school's computer system. She also was forced to write many of her own instructional materials and a practice set.



Shari Dunsmore inspects a 5-page report she had just output from her terminal to the printer. Cheryl Parks is keyboarding her rough draft, which appears on the screen as she types. When she is certain everything is perfect on the screen, she will output to printer for an error-free copy.

Establishing good typing habits is stressed in beginning typing, Dale Profitt demonstrates that he has mastered those skills.



Proofreading is a very important skill. Tony Cooper and April Robinson work together to insure that Tony's copy is perfect before outputing it to the printer.

A lecture on the basics of pyschology brings different responses from Danny Hamilton, Jeff Gaines, Tenoha Brown, and Donna Oliphant.

Sophomores Troy Roahrig, Darren Coulter, and Jenny Bennett discuss World History notes.

Hi Lites Staff Faced Problems

Production of the yearbook was difficult due to three factors. First, the staff was very inexperienced. Only one member had any experience when the year began. Secondly, two sponsors were in charge. During the first semester, Mrs. Cherl Jenkins trained the staff, and then Mrs. Sue Hamilton took over the second semester. A third factor which contributed to the difficulties the staff experienced was the attempt to develop pictures. Like many experiments, the attempt was not totally a failure, but there were many problems still to be worked out.

Attempting to get a layout just right proves to be a consuming task for Jon Gillette

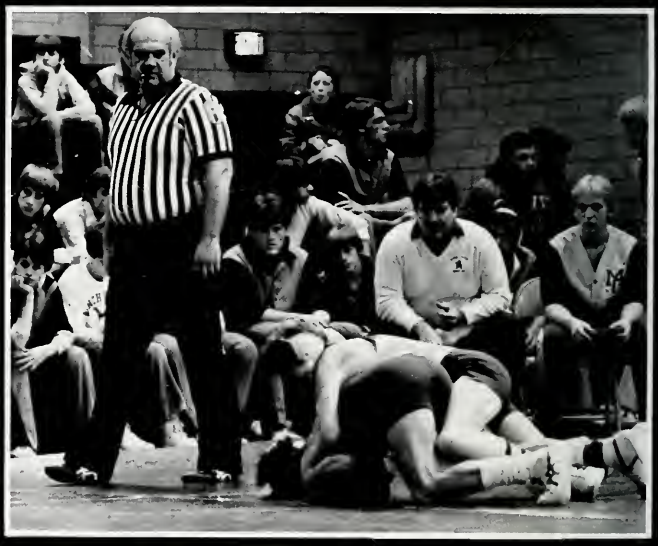
A Variety Of Images

SPORTS

The IMAGE most common to the following sports' section is one of effort. Whether the effort was a winning one or a losing one, whether the task was a grueling cross country run, a mighty heave of the shot put, or the finesse of a dink in volleyball, one thing was certain. The athletes who made up the Golden Bear teams always put forth their best efforts.



Coach Les McElhowney and John Marquis urge on one of the Golden Bears during sectional competition.

In the narrow sectional loss to eventual champion Union City, Travis Main scores an easy layup.

In the county track meet, Darlena Hunt scores a convincing victory in the 1600 meter run.

Showing the fierce competitiveness which will make her an outstanding player, Sarah McGunegill blocks a shot in the sectional game with Union City.

Working Together To Build Spirit

Cheerleaders had the difficult task of trying to get a crowd of people to be wild and enthusiastic at ballgames. However, at Monroe Central the girls had much help. The pep band could be counted on at all home games to provide musical support. Michelle Ludwig, the Bear Mascot, also added to the frenzy. The cheerblock attended all home games and away conference games to back up the cheerleaders.

Another important ingredient to Monroe Central's spirit family was the adult booster club. Not only did the group provide vocal support, but through their generous financial aid many luxuries were provided to the varsity teams. For instance, the boosters bought shirts for all varisty team members.

Varsity — Mandy Reece, Kelli Davis, Robin Keever, Colette Gantz, Trisha Deckman, Lisa Payne.

For the first time in several years mountmen reappeared at the sectional.

Bear Mascot, Michelle Ludwig, helps to bring spirit to the team and fans.

Robin Keever waits patiently to see if the ball goes through the hoop.

Chris Burke shows the agony of pain while attempting to hold Carma Winans.

Learning the yells is only one part of the cheerblock's job. They must also learn elaborate hand routines.

Reserve: Crama Winans, Connie Small. Back Row: Mindy Homan, Chris Burke, Toni Smith.

Cross Country team captures county

The 1983 cross country team, consisting of 18 members, was the largest one ever. The "Running Bears" were also successful, having an 8-6 record and winning the first county cross country title in the school's history.

The Bears were led by Andy Bly, Jon Warner, and Scott Moore. Andy was voted MVP. He finished second in the county, seventh in the conference, and eighth in the sectional, which advanced him to the regional where he placed thirty-seventh. Andy made the All-Conference team, and both he and Scott Moore were named to the All-County team.

The MC Bears dig in for a good position at the beginning of the Randolph County meet.

With a look of determination, Andy Bly finishes the first lap of the county meet.

Spikers Fail In Quest For Winning Season

The spikers started the year with a victory, but once again they failed to achieve a winning season, finishing with a 7-12 mark. However, several of the losses suffered by first-year coach Cherl Jenkins and the volleyball team were by narrow margins in hard-fought three game matches.

Individually, Trisha Deckman won honors as the best passer and was named the most valuable player. Stephanie Shelton won the spiking trophy while Michelle Ludwig grabbed the serving honors. Trisha and Stephanie were also elected to the All-County team.

The varsity wrestlers finished with a 7-4-1 dual meet record, second in the county, and third in both the conference and sectional.

Individually, Bret Hodson had the best season record, 18-6. At 167 pounds Ensel Moore was the lone conference champion, but three boys, Bret Hodson, Dan Miller, and Brad Watt won county championships. Bret Hodson, Dan Miller, Brad Watt, and Kent Driskill all placed second in the sectional, and therefore advanced to regional competition.

Thirteen underclassmen participated on the reserve team and gained valuable experience. The junior high team managed an even .500 record, 4-4.

In the consolation match of the county tourney, Darren Coulter pins his opponent.

Bears Suffer Through Losing Season

For both first year coach Jerry Snapp and the Monroe Central fans, the basketball season was a long and difficult one. The Bears slipped to a 7-14 record and finiahed seventh in the conference.

One highlight of the year was the team's performance in the county tourney. In the opening round, the Bears destroyed Union 66-45 and in the championship game lost 61-60 in overtime to Randolph Southern.

Dennis Doss led the team in scoring, rebounding, and field goal percentage. MVP Travis Main was tops in assists and second in scoring.

Disappointed, Monte Northcutt and Travis Main accept the game ball after the county tourney loss.

The freshmen team was one of the few bright spots in a rather dismal boys' basketball season. The ninth graders compiled an 11-5 record and were paced in scoring by Joel VanPelt.

The eighth grade, led in both scoring and rebounding by Jeff Cockerill, had a disastrous 0-6 start. However, the team finished strong, winning 4 of their last 8 games. In the county tourney the team performed well, avenging an earlier season loss to Union City.

The season was a rough one for the seventh grade, who won only 1 game and lost 13. The team was paced by Larry McCollum's 6.2 average.

Accurate free throw shooting by Troy Landers and the other freshmen helped them to an 11-5 season.

Lady Bears Claim Another Triple Championship

Impressive! That adjective describes well the Lady Bears. Their 19-4 record was the best in school history. The girls repeated as conference champion with a 9-0 mark. The team easily defeated other county schools to claim the county championship. The girls annihilated 3 sectional opponents in route to their second consecutive championship.

Individuals were also impressive. Tamma Butterfield set a new record with 57% field goal shooting accuracy. Tamma, along with Stephanie Shelton and Dina Crouch, made both the All-Conference and All-County teams. Those 3 players and teammate Lori Wilson also made the All-Sectional team.

Seniors members of the girls' basketball team accept the sectional trophy for the second straight year.

Trackmen Establish Three Records

The varsity trackmen had one of their most successful seasons ever. The long setback in dual meets was a narrow early season loss to Union City. The Golden Bears also scored well in county and conference competition, finishing second in both events.

Individually, three new records were established. Jeff Burke broke the discus's record and Dale Profitt, the long jump mark. In addition, Tracy Buis set a new record in the 300 intermediate hurdles.

With his toss of 144', Jeff Burke establishes a new school record.

Jeff Kelly Is Sectional Medalist

A county or conference championship is an accomplishment for any team, but the boys' golf team continued its domination by winning both titles for a sixth successive time. The team did not quite have the depth to win a regional berth. The Bears finished fourth in the sectional although Jeff Kelly took individual honors and teammate Ed Lockard finished third.

The girls' team had a 4-6 record. The season mark becomes more impressive when compared with last years' winless record. The Bears were paced by team medalist Robin Keever.

Concentration is needed for good putting. Here Ed Lockard shows that he has the "right stuff."

PEOPLE

Every day, each student searches for his identity as he goes from class to class. One period, a student tries being a home economist. The next hour, he experiences the frustrations and triumphs of a chemist, or the shining moment when he finishes an artistic masterpiece. Nothing is more rewarding than a task well done after much work, but each student must also find those qualities in himself that help him interact successfully with others around him. Throughout each day, a student's image of himself constantly changes as he searches for that which reflects his true self.

Trent Hutchison helps an intense Bret Hodson to stretch a canvas on a frame, while Mrs. Margie Frank gives advice for a new project.

A chemistry experiment requires concentration from Linda Smithson, as Julie Davis adjusts the flame to the proper level.

Making a fancy cake is fun for Karen Bohner and Glenna Huston, but eating the finished product is the best part of baking it.

Watching a pretty girl go by is a welcome diversion for Trey Reahrig. It takes his mind off the questionable fare on his lunch tray.

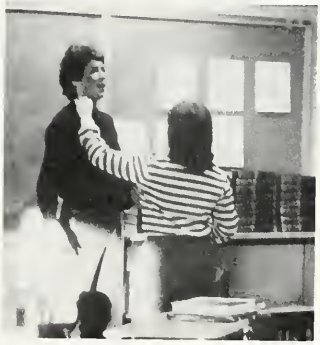
The students of 1984

As the day gets longer, Bryan Hughes refuses to move between classes.



Before government class, everyone always looks their best for Mr. Swindell. Robin Duncan stretches up to Dina Crouch to straighten her tie so that she can be a perfect "10".

A mixture of emotions show on the faces of a senior English class. Some are intent, while others wish they understood or were somewhere else. Jeff Burke, Beth Hale, Malia Mitchell, Scott Turner and Shawn Swearingen listen as Mrs. Washler explains the difference between dependent and independent clauses.

Cutting hair is only one skill required in a beauty shop. Kathy Reece practices on a fellow student at Amber's Beauty School.

The employees of 1984

The image of the typical student has changed. Not only does he need to study hard, but now many work hard at other pursuits.

Thirty-nine out of ninety-eight seniors were employed in the 1983-84 school year. The money, which in most cases wasn't very much, was spent on cars, college, and good times.

In a few situations, it did affect school work, but not in most. Some students, such as Cindy Moore and Kathy Reece, who work at Amber's Beauty School, plan to continue the same line of work after graduation.

Dennis Doss, who works at Hickory Hills said one on-the-job hazard is that "I never know when I'm going to get hit by a golf ball."

The seniors agreed that one good aspect of having a job is that it prepared them for their futures by giving them the experience of working with the public.

A familiar face at Monroe Central is Cindy Mounger, who earns extra spending money by working in the cafeteria at noon.

Double images

Students at Monroe Central almost never fit in one mold. However, there seem to be a few exceptions. In the Junior class, the Hodson and O'Bryant twins appear to be mirror images, but they really are not to those who know them. Outside, they may look alike, but their personalities differ just like any pair of brothers or sisters.

Brad and Bret Hodson share a moment together as they wait for the bell to ring.

Lissa and Leesa O'Bryant check each other's hair before they go to their next class.

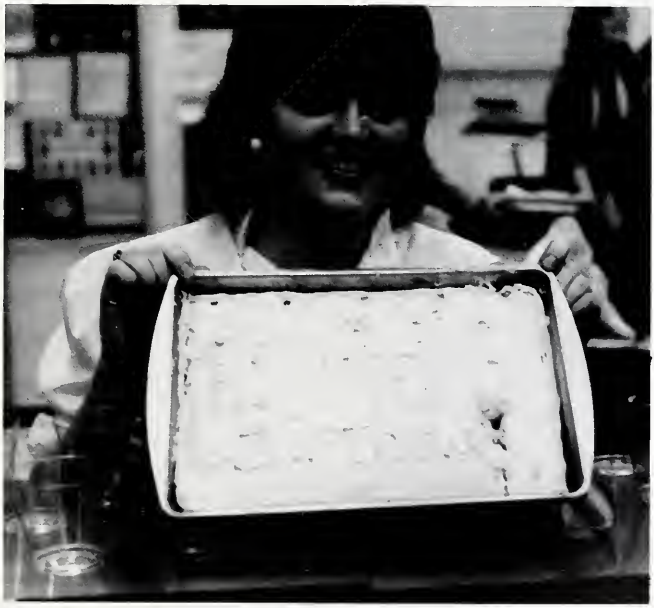
Mrs. Paula Washler — English, Masque And Gavel Sponsor, Pep Club Sponsor.

Mrs. Linda Welch — English, Senior Class Sponsor.
Mrs. Cheryl Williamson — French, English, Foreign Language Club Sponsor, Mat Maids Sponsor, Seventh Grade Class Sponsor.

During the homecoming ceremonies, Mr. Steve Reed carefully pins a carnation on Mr. Don Elder.

Gesturing to make a point clear, Mr. Larry Calvert instructs students in the basics of electricity.



Miss Belinda Horton is surprised by a birthday party her students gave her at a rehearsal.

Mr. Proctor is caught slightly off guard by a HI LITES' photographer.

ADMINISTRATION

Spending many hours at his desk was very necessary for Principal Don Elder. Changes in the state education laws meant many changes for Monroe Central. Here Mr. Elder tries to juggle teachers' schedules for next year's seven period day.

Assistant principal Larry New directs athletics.

Whether choosing classes or careers, students can count on counselor, Mr. Dick Meister.

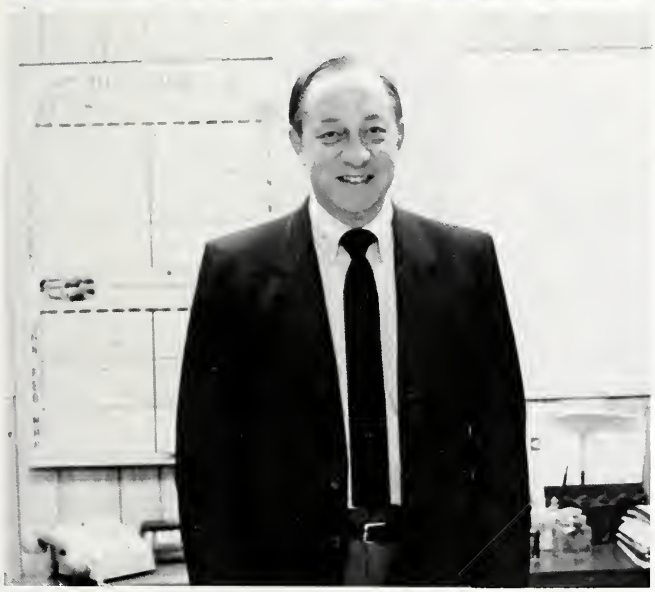
The completion of the new elementary meant Mr. Frank Brown had to restructure the corporation's transportation system.

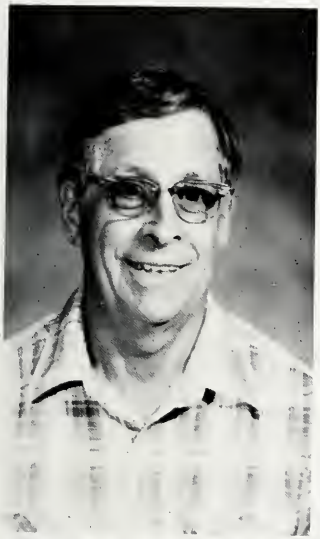


Superintendent Merle Bryan has reason to smile. For the first time since accepting the job ten years ago, he was not faced with a major building project.

STAFF

Cooks — Phylis Oliphant, Julie Reiber, Anna Craig, Norma Howell, Dorthy Ball, Mary Chalfant.

The new school nurse, Mrs. Lynn Davis, checks to see if Keith Johnson is really sick enough to go home.



Being a school janitor means more than keeping the school clean. Mr. Marvin Weimer and Mr. Lonnie Daniels can be counted on to help students, whether it's helping with a jammed locker or helping to find a lost book.

Be it 8:20 or 3:20, Mrs. Connie Akers, the school secretary, is hard at work.

A Variety Of Images

ADS

Each year the HI LITES staff scampers in and out of the surrounding towns of Farmland, Parker City, Winchester, and Muncie to sell advertisements in the yearbook. But the student body as a whole may not appreciate these sponsors enough. Many students don't realize that the yearbook would not be possible without these sponsors. Hopefully, MC students will support these fine local merchants who give so generously to the school.

Whether a loan for a worthy purpose or an advertisement for a yearbook, count on the Parker Banking Company.

Webb's Jewelry Store in Winchester carries a wide selection of class rings and other fine jewelry.

Del's is a popular place with both Mount Central guys and gals. The Farmland business offers the very latest in hair styles for both sexes.

Insurance is just one of the new responsibilities that comes with a driver's license. Julie Woodard discusses details with Parker City agent, Mr. Wayne Thompson.

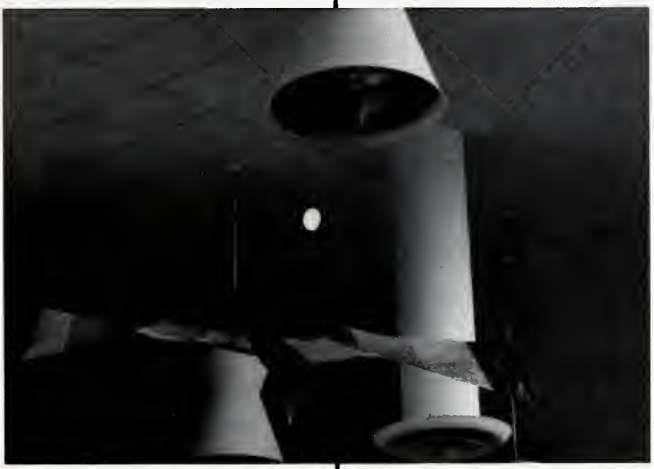
Decorated lockers are one way students show their creativity and individuality.

One of Ansel Toney's kites flies high above the library.



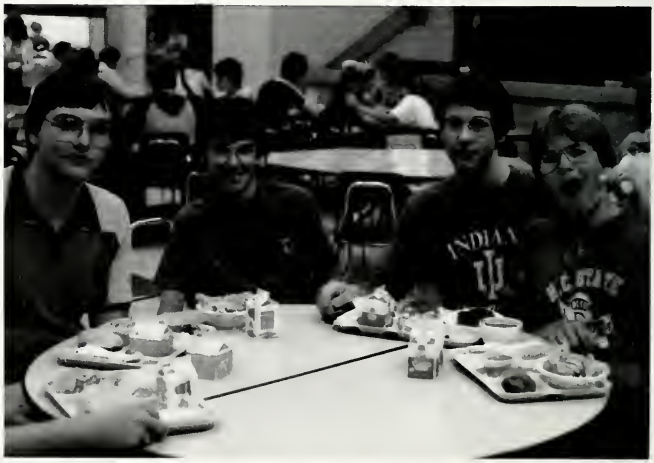
The first day back to school can be lonely for Travis Main and others who have make-up tests.

Her locker may not be neat, but Julie Davis doesn't seem upset by it.

To show class unity and relieve the tension of the last weeks of school, the sophomores stage their own dress-up week. Here Shelly Hedges, Nancy Craig, and Jada Dodson are pictured on Hobo Day.

Like their students, Paula and David Washler seem delighted with the beautiful spring weather.

Parting Shots



Lunch period is a time for good food and good times.
